

Tirinha e cartum

13 questões · 0.9 por prova · Inglês · 10 por prova · 6,25% da nota

Questões das provas da ESPM de 2019 a 2026, extraídas dos cadernos oficiais em PDF. Fórmulas, figuras e imagens podem sair imperfeitas — cada questão traz a prova e o número para conferir no original em espm.br. Gabarito oficial no fim.

1. ESPM 2019-1 E · questão 49

The cartoon:

- a) was intended for child audiences.
- b) criticizes violence in fairy tales.
- c) condemns America's indifference to the death of foreign children.
- d) repudiates Adolf Hitler's decisions.
- e) depicts American mothers are mean and cold.

2. ESPM 2019-2 U · questão 41

The boy is upset because:

- a) he wants to see the bulldozer, but he can't.
- b) he doesn't like shady areas.
- c) he doesn't know who is going to buy the houses.
- d) the area has become a mud pit.
- e) he can't play with the animals.

3. ESPM 2019-2 U · questão 42

The comic strip is mainly about:

- a) the need for more play areas in urban planning.
 - b) the real estate trend not to preserve native forests in their projects.
 - c) the fight to save endangered species from disappearing.
 - d) costly residential projects that only very few can afford.
 - e) environmentally friendly real estate development.
- DESIGNING THE FUTURE By Anne Underwood Imagine buildings that generate more energy than they consume and factories whose waste water is clean enough to drink. William McDonough has accomplished these tasks and more. Architect, industrial designer and founder of McDonough Braungart Design Chemistry in Charlottesville, Va., he's not your traditional environmentalist. Others may expend their energy fighting for stricter environmental regulations and repeating the mantra "reduce, reuse, recycle." McDonough's vision for the future includes factories so safe they need no regulation, and novel, safe materials that can be totally reprocessed into new goods, so there's no reason to scale back consumption (or lose jobs). In short, he wants to overhaul the Industrial Revolution-- which would sound crazy if he weren't working with Fortune 500 companies and the government of China to make it happen. He spoke in New York with NEWSWEEK's Anne Underwood. UNDERWOOD: Why do we need a new industrial revolution? MCDONOUGH: The Industrial Revolution as a whole was not designed. It took shape gradually as industrialists and engineers figured out how to make things. The result is that we put billions of pounds of toxic materials in the air, water and soil every year and generate gigantic amounts of waste. If our goal is to destroy the world-- to produce global warming and toxicity and endocrine disruption-- we're doing great. But if the goal isn't global warming, what is? I want to crank the wheel of industry in a different direction to produce a world of abundance and good design.

In the comic strip above, Calvin becomes upset because:

- a) He was making a compliment to his teacher, but she did not understand his inner intentions.
 - b) He was trying to lure his teacher away, but she realized his inner intentions.
 - c) Despite the importance of checking homework, his teacher was more interested in telling him off.
 - d) He believes teachers should be on the streets, not in class, fighting for their right to better salaries.
 - e) He did his homework even though his teacher was suspicious about it.
- VESTIBULAR 2020 1 25
HUMANIDADES E CULTURA GERAL CONTEMPORÂNEA
-

Disponível em <https://www.gocomics.com/lacucaracha/2020/08/20> acesso em 18/01/23 The cartoon above relates to the article ‘A Chinese app conquered the planet and now the U.S. is threatening to shut it down. Can the world’s biggest virality machine survive?’ (questions 41-44) because:

- a) It reveals the population’s support for the American government to be pro Ukraine in the European conflict;
- b) It shows the population’s opposition to the American government to limit civil liberties;
- c) It suggests how adults can convince adolescents to be more responsible;
- d) It makes fun of people who expose themselves too much on Tik Tok;
- e) It mentions the possibility of the restriction being imposed on the company’s operation in the U.S.A.

VESTIBULAR 2023 2 23 Why super-strict classrooms are in vogue in Britain An instructive visit to the Michaela school in north London Jan 16th 2023 | WEMBLEY , NORTH LONDON To understand how discipline is changing in British schools, go to Michaela Community School in north London. Among the first things you see are vast bright billboards. Whereas other schools coax pupils, cosset them with congratulations and avoid marking in red pen lest they sear young souls, Michaela has no truck with such softness. “I am the MASTER of my fate”, reads one billboard, in unrepentantly large capitals. “Work HARD Be KIND”, reads another. “Especially”, barks a third, “when it is DIFFICULT”. And pupils at Michaela do work. HARD. As breathless news reports relate, they listen attentively in lessons; walk in silence in corridors; chant poetry in the lunch hall—and ace exams. Almost a quarter of its pupils are on free school meals, yet almost threequarters of its a-Levels (exams usually taken at 18) were graded a or a*. It is rated “outstanding” by Ofsted, a state inspectorate, and its most recent Progress 8 score (a nerdy educational tool used to measure the value added by a school) is not just the best in the country but, according to Tom Bennett, a former teacher who is the government’s behavior tsar, “the best that there’s ever been. It is extraordinary. ” Michaela, which opened in 2014, is also extraordinarily contentious—because it, its exam-acing children and its charismatic head teacher, Katharine Birbalsingh, are at the centre of an argument over how strict discipline should be in British classrooms. The debate is bitter, has deep roots and is itself strikingly undisciplined: Ms Birbalsingh, an outspoken figure who stepped down as chair of the government’s social-mobility commission this month, has received death threats. One reason this debate is so bitter is that classroom politics in Britain are intimately tied up with class politics. Once, education in Britain was scrupulously egalitarian in its disciplinary methods, with the children of princes and paupers alike beaten till they bled (“the agony”, wrote Roald Dahl, was “unbelievable”). Then, in the 1960s, grammar schools closed, new comprehensive schools opened and the stern old ways were comprehensively rejected by many. VESTIBULAR 2023 2 24 former head teacher who now advises London academies, chaotic classrooms are “certainly not egalitarian”: kids with settled home lives manage disruption better and disadvantaged ones flounder. Moreover, children like discipline. What adults see as strictness, they often perceive as safety and the promise of success. Michaela pupils are unnervingly keen on their school. Y our correspondent was shown around by a pupil who said that she wanted to be “a doctor or a surgeon” and study at “Cambridge or Oxford”. Sociologists may not want to launch educational sputniks; children often want to soar. The discipline debate is far from over but it is open in a way that it hasn’t been in years. Back at Michaela the bell rings for lunch, and the children file into the dining hall where the lunchtime poetry recital begins. A young teacher stands at the front and shouts the first word of each line; the pupils respond with the rest. Today, the poem is “Invictus”. “Out—” he shouts; “—of the night that covers me,” they shout back at once. On the poem goes, call and response, louder each line, until the final couplet. This, like everything in Michaela, is done in capitals. “I—” he shouts; “AM THE MASTER OF MY FATE,” shout back 170-odd children . “I—” he shouts and, in capitals, the children shout back: “AM THE CAPTAIN OF MY SOUL.” Disponível em <https://www.economist.com/britain/2023/01/16/why-super-strict-classrooms-are-in-vogue-in-britain>. Acesso em 22/01/2023

6. ESPM 2023-2 U · questão 50

Disponível em gocomics.com. Acesso em 12/03/2023 In the comic strip above, Calvin's response, expressed in the last frame, means that:

- a) He is unwilling to comply with what is necessary for him to achieve his objectives;
 - b) He disagrees with his teacher's reply to what he claims;
 - c) His demands are not in accordance with his school's ethos;
 - d) He cannot understand there is no guarantee the school is going to fulfill his expectations;
 - e) In spite of his struggling hard, he won't be a high achiever.
- VESTIBULAR 2023 2 26 HUMANIDADES E CULTURA GERAL CONTEMPORÂNEA
-

7. ESPM 2024-1 A · questão 49

The following comics are jokes because of ambiguities. These ambiguities happen:

- a) in the way both use the verb lie/lies;
 - b) due to their verb choices;
 - c) in their negatives;
 - d) in their characters' representations;
 - e) in their use of the prepositions (out and ahead).
-

8. ESPM 2024-1 B · questão 50

Read the comic strip and answer the question below it: Disponível em: <https://twitter.com/WTFrameComics/status/1132703261402763264> In the comic strip above, the character explains to his past self that:

- a) there aren't flying automobiles in the future;
 - b) he really misses his old house appliances;
 - c) modern advances created new lifestyles;
 - d) there is a downside to the modern advances;
 - e) the device chargers do not work properly.
- VESTIBULAR 2024 1 24 HUMANIDADES E CULTURA GERAL CONTEMPORÂNEA
-

9. ESPM 2024-2 U · questão 45

(<https://theweek.com/cartoons/548810/editorial-cartoon--education>) The cartoon above illustrates an idea presented in:

- a) Paragraph 2;
 - b) Paragraph 4;
 - c) Paragraph 6;
 - d) Paragraph 8;
 - e) Paragraph 10.
-

10. ESPM 2024-2 U · questão 50

(<https://twitter.com/GSammonWrites/status/1553713452853641217>) The cartoon above shows:

- a) The children using technology and ignoring their mom's talk;
 - b) A clash of generations with regard to divergent writing styles;
 - c) The children using abbreviations in cursive writing;
 - d) The blond girl clarifying to the boy what their mother is saying;
 - e) The mother's attempt to teach her children a style called cursive.
- VESTIBULAR 2024 2 23 HUMANIDADES E CULTURA GERAL CONTEMPORÂNEA
-

11. ESPM 2025-1 112 · questão 50

<https://www.gocomics.com/speedbump/2010/09/13> After reading the monk's words, we may assume that he:

- a) has always lived by precepts that resemble underconsumption core.
 - b) has had no choice but to live in extreme poverty.
 - c) has no regrets to have adopted a life of material possessions.
 - d) might be trying to convince the other monk to undergo a cultural shift.
 - e) disdains the lifestyle he used to have before taking his monastic vows.
- VESTIBULAR 2025 1 23
HUMANIDADES E CULTURA GERAL CONTEMPORÂNEA
-

12. ESPM 2025-1 212 · questão 49

Millman, R. 26 Out 2023. 12:50. Tweet. Disponível em <https://twitter.com/rachelmillman/status/1717569286762332444>; Acesso em: 28/03/2024 After reading the article by Yasmin Tayag, it is possible to infer that the meaning of the word 'underrated', in the post above, is:

- a) exaggerated;
 - b) necessary;
 - c) annoying;
 - d) downplayed;
 - e) understandable.
-

13. ESPM 2025-1 212 · questão 50

Disponível em: https://www.glasbergen.com/ngg_tag/quit-drinking-coffee/; Acesso em 28/3/2024 What produces the mockery in the cartoon above is:

- a) the fact that it ironically underestimates the effect of coffee in keeping people awake;
 - b) the character's way to say he would rather be asleep during presentations;
 - c) the fact that coffee is the character's best friend as he has to drink it in order to attend presentations;
 - d) the character's way to say he would rather be awake during presentations;
 - e) the fact that the person wearing the dotted tie is trying to convince the other to stop drinking coffee by telling an anecdote.
- VESTIBULAR 2025 1 23 HUMANIDADES E CULTURA GERAL CONTEMPORÂNEA
-

Gabarito

#	prova	q.	resp.
1	2019-1 E	49	C
2	2019-2 U	41	D
3	2019-2 U	42	B
4	2020-1 U	50	B
5	2023-2 U	45	E
6	2023-2 U	50	A
7	2024-1 A	49	B

#	prova	q.	resp.
8	2024-1 B	50	D
9	2024-2 U	45	B
10	2024-2 U	50	B
11	2025-1 112	50	D
12	2025-1 212	49	D
13	2025-1 212	50	B